INITIAL COMMERCIALIZATION

The company began a small commercial operation in the Imperial Valley/Yuma, Arizona area to provide the experience that will allow AMS to fine-tune its commercial operations over a cropping season, while acreage is small, before expanding to large acreage. (A single AMS system can provide imagery once a week over roughly 400,000 irrigated—that is, “tight”—areas.)

The Company is presently looking for investment capital to make a decisive transition from a research company, to a strong commercial production company supplying imagery to U.S. Agriculture. Accredited investors are invited to inquire.
